- Small-scale filming & photography is run by London St. Pancras Highspeed directly (up to 15 people)
- Large-scale activity is run via Network Rail and further details can be found here: filming.networkrail.co.uk/hs1/
- Press photography and filming requests must contact: stpancras-highspeed@fleishman.com

ST. PANCRAS INTERNATIONAL

St. Pancras International is an iconic Grade I listed building and a masterpiece of Victorian Gothic Architecture. It was designed to impress. There's a wealth of contrasting and characteristic locations all under one roof.

We advise that applicants do a recce before applying, no matter the size of the activity, so that you can choose the most relevant space. Here are some useful links to find out more about the station:

THE GRAND TERRACE

The Grand Terrace is the station's stage and the place where the full span and construction of the roof can be fully appreciated.

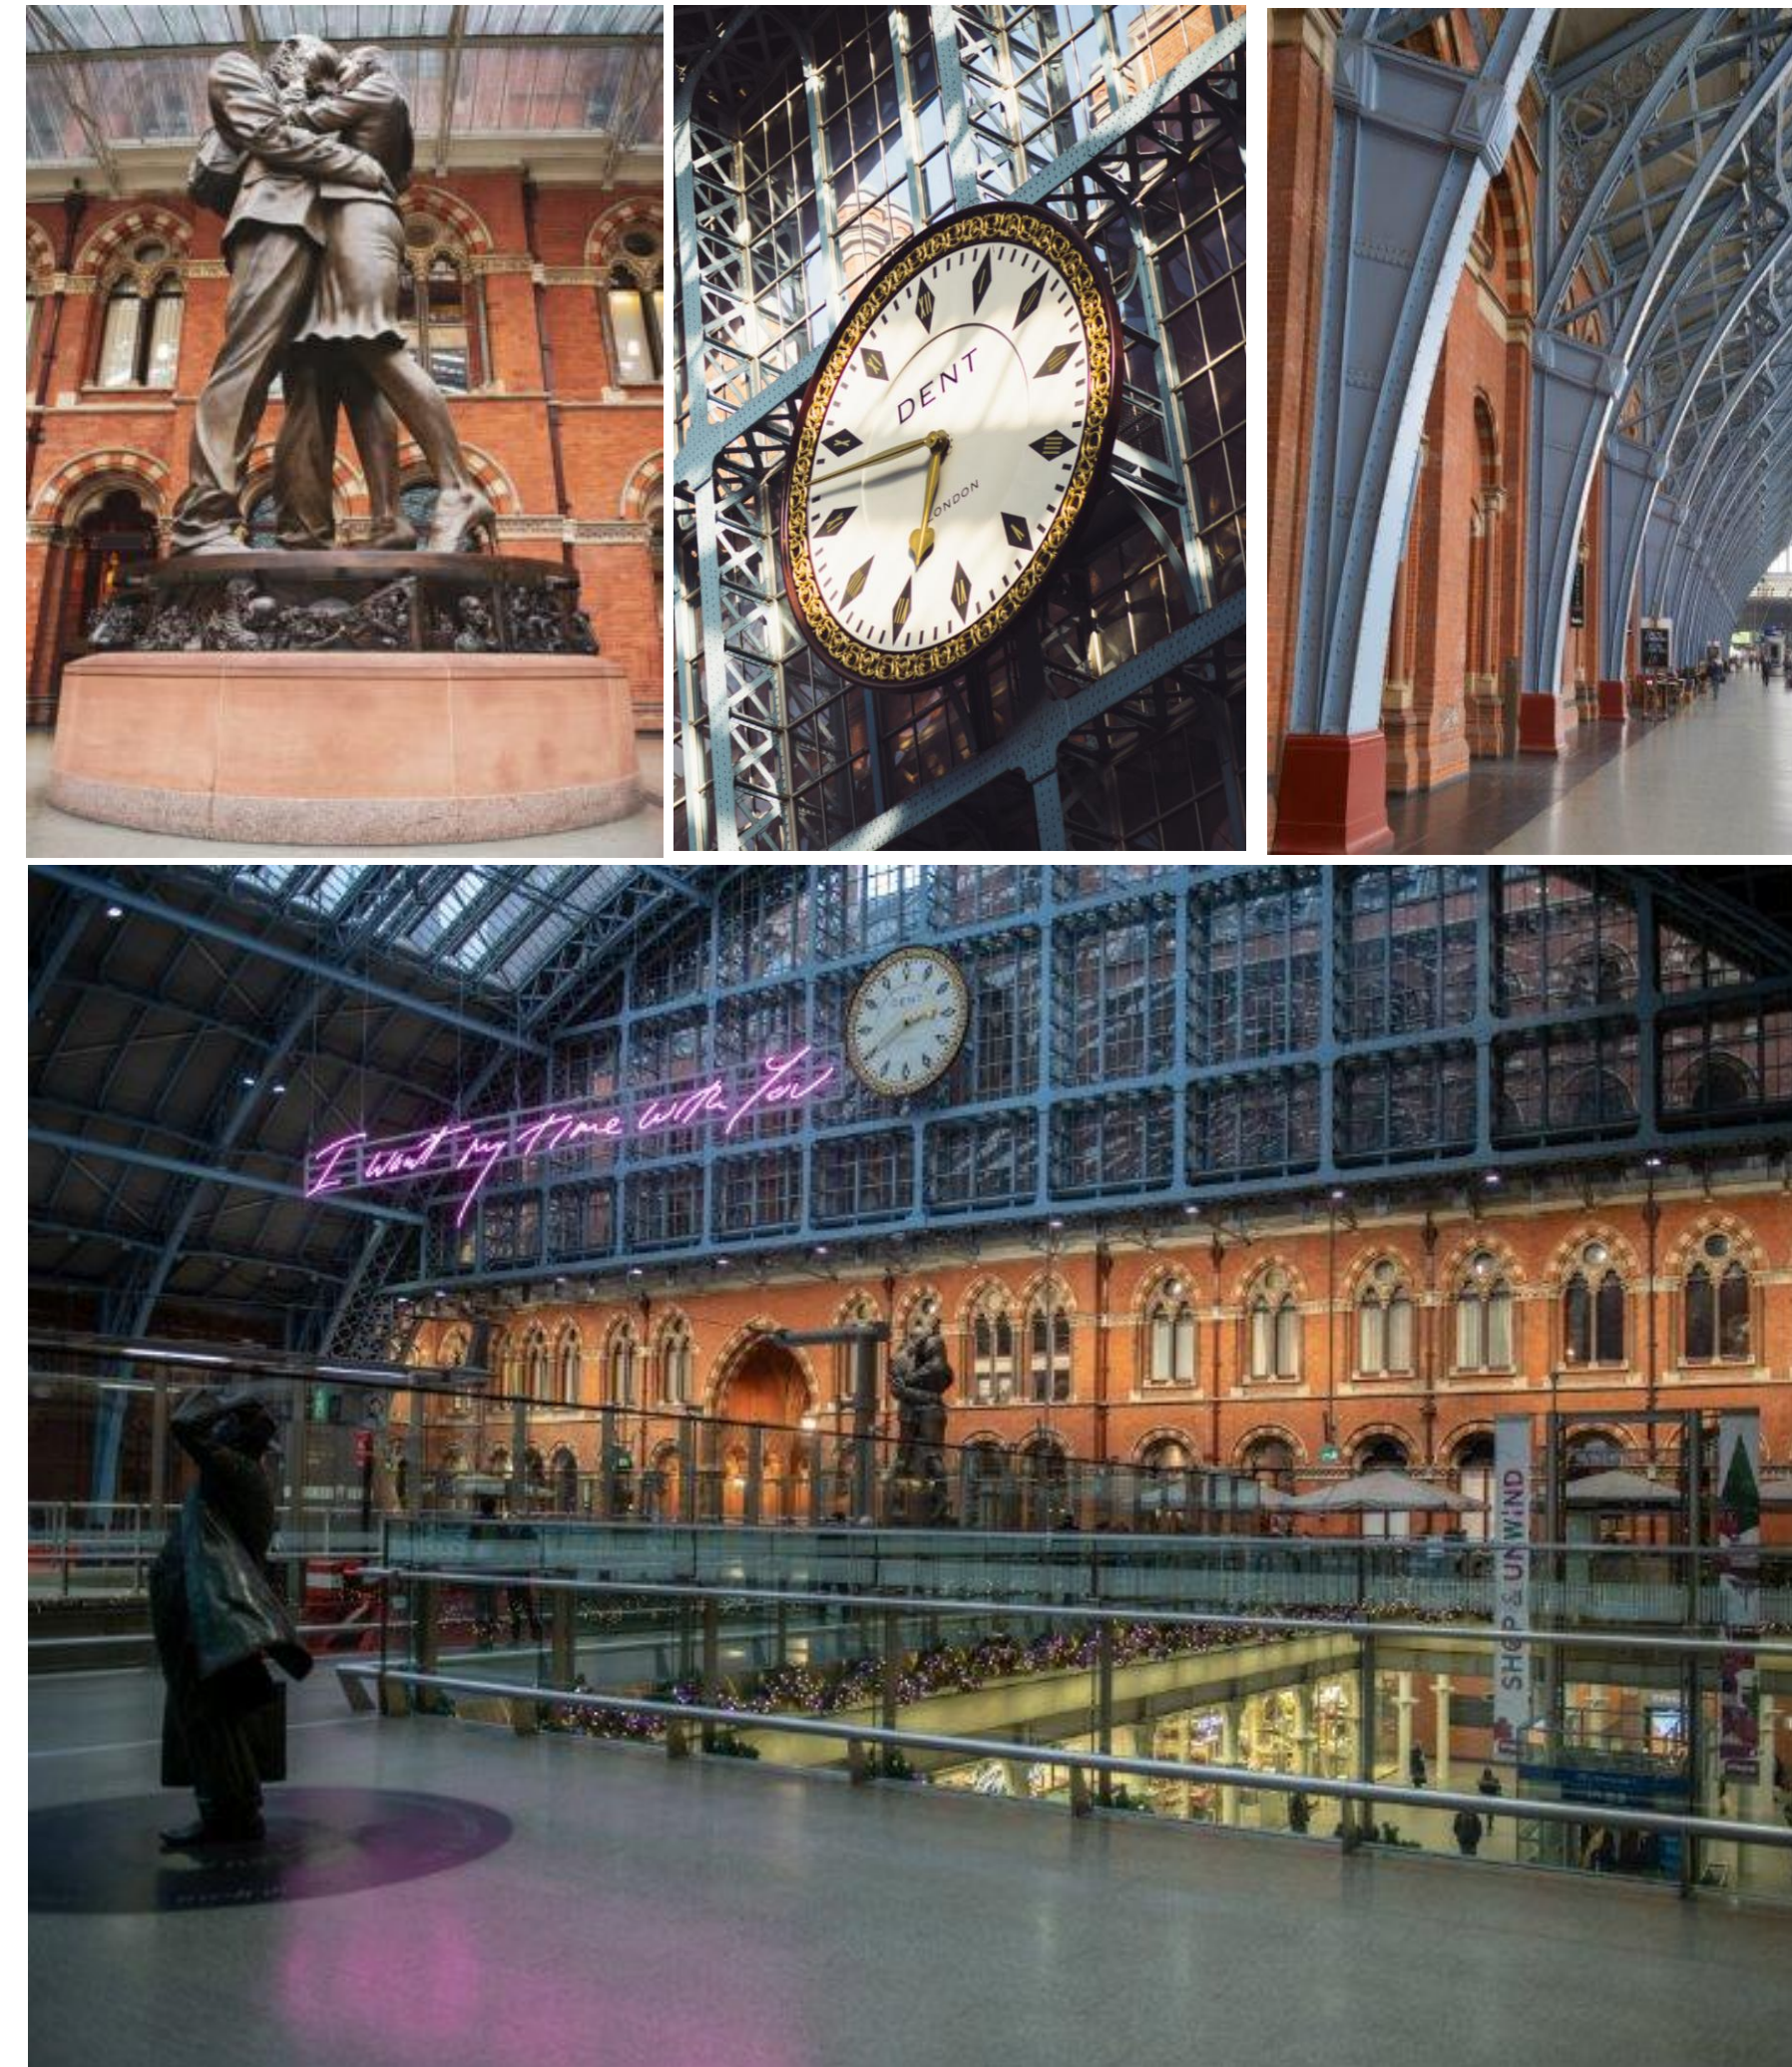

A key feature includes the Barlow Shed roof. The roof is glass and supported by huge iron trusses forming a Gothic arch. It's an elegant and breath-taking backdrop for any type of shoot.

This upper floor is also home to artworks and statues including 'Sir John Betjeman' and Paul Day's 'The Meeting Place'.

The architecture on the Eastern Arches includes the vaulting on the brickwork and the beautiful carvings of wyverns at the base. These mythical two-legged dragons were the symbol of the Midland Railway Company and were given pride of place where arriving travellers could marvel at them.

With your camera pointing South, you'll have the iconic station clock in view. The clock was made by Dent with Smith of Derby; both of which have long histories of clock making.

The floor space on this upper level offers more sufficient room for crews and cast to move more easily.

THE ARCADE & THE CIRCLE

These locations are bustling with activity.

There's a real sense of movement and excitement from travellers and shopping & dining visitors alike.

They are home to the public pianos, the jukebox, an array of retail and F&B outlets, platform and station entrances and views of the iconic roof.

Historically, The Arcade was originally called The Undercroft and amongst the retail units, there are 688 cast iron columns which were originally built to support the train deck above and a warehouse space for beer barrels.

The Circle is a newer space in comparison to the other sites and footfall is high due to the numerous entrances within the atrium. There's an iconic departures board which is a popular backdrop for travel themed content.

STRATFORD INTERNATIONAL

Stratford International is a bright and open station that connects central and East London with Kent and the Southeast.

The station consists of a large open entrance/exit hall with a café, shop and additional services. It's located next-door to destinations such as Westfield Shopping Centre and The Stratford hotel.

We advise that applicants do a recce before applying. Here are some useful links to find out more about the station:

APPLICATION PROCESS

We currently require a minimum of 7 days' notice for small-scale filming & photography projects. This may decrease or increase depending on level of initial detail given and amount of resource needed.

1. Application: Complete the RAMS form on our website and send it to specialevents@stpancras-highspeed.com with your proof of Public Liability Insurance. Within the form, you must specify your preferred location so that we can review your risks in association with that location.
2. Review: Once received, London St. Pancras Highspeed will review your application. If the activity is possible, you will be quoted the final fee. Once agreed, the application will be sent to the station operator for review of the Risk Assessment. If changes are needed, you will be notified during this review.
3. Agreements: We require all approved applicants to counter sign a location agreement form. This form outlines the filming considerations on the previous slide as well as details of the agreed fee.
4. On the day: When arriving at the station, you must sign in at the station reception or car park office before starting. Please ensure you have valid photo ID and a copy of your approved application to show. The management teams will help answer any additional questions you have.

FEES

Professional filming and photography in the station’s public areas and car parks will be considered commercial and therefore subject to a location fee.

All fees are split depending on production type, number of people and duration. If your request doesn’t fall into one of these categories, a fee will be quoted upon application.

- Please note that these fees are outlined as a guide and may change depending on the purpose, impact on operations, equipment and resource required for your activity.
